Event: A national webinar on Postcolonial Elements in Indian Short Stories in English

Date: 21st July, 2020

Objective: It was intended to broaden the idea of participants, specially the students of college, about the postcolonial issues and literary writings.

Description: During the challenging time of lockdown, the teaching staff of Department of English made an effort to carry on the academic activities by engaging online classes and organizing webinars. It was decided in the departmental meeting that the topic of webinar would be Postcolonial Elements in Indian Short Stories in English included in the syllabus of undergraduate course. The topic was considered relevant as it would facilitate learners to understand the postcolonial tests of their curriculum properly. The webinar was organized on 21st July, 2020. A considerable number of participants joined the webinar. In the beginning, the coordinator of IQAC addressed the participants and pointed out the purpose and theme of the webinar. Thereafter, the Principal accorded warm welcome to all participants. The distinguished speakers were introduced by the departmental teachers and they threw light on the topic of the webinar elaborately. Dr. Punita Jha, Professor of Department of English in L.N. Mithila University, Darbhanga, Bihar, delivered a scholarly lecture on the postcolonial issues in the context of India and the effort of Indian writers to deal with those issues in their writings. She dwelt upon various aspects of postcolonial elements namely social issues, hybrid culture, exploitation by the colonizers and subsequent protest of postcolonial writers. Her lecture focused mainly on the Indian writers of short stories and various themes highlighted in their writings. Another distinguished speaker, Dr. Shubh Brat Sarkar, Associate Professor of Department of English in RBC College, Naihati, West Bengal, discussed the tales of untouchables in the postcolonial India. His touched upon various aspects of Dalit writings reflecting the issue of caste, poverty and other disadvantages of the downtrodden people. Starting with the popular short story The Shroud of Premchand, he discussed the stories of other writers related to Dalit society. His lecture was enlightening and informative.
